MEMORANDUM FOR: Director of Central Intelligence FROM: Anthony A. Lapham General Counsel OGC Has Reviewed SUBJECT: Legal Support to CIA and DCI 1. Action Requested: Your consideration of the options outlined in paragraph 9 below. 2. Background: From time to time we have discussed the CIA/DCI legal support function, and possible alternative arrangements. You have looked to me for advice on this subject, and I have been a bit slow to respond, wanting among other things to make sure that insofar as possible my thoughts were divorced from any personal considerations. I have the sense from our discussions that you feel somewhat shorthanded, or perhaps under-represented would be the better word, when it comes to legal support on the Community side of the house. I have tried to understand the origins of that problem as well as to weigh the merits of various new approaches, including the idea of dividing the legal function, leaving one office to serve CIA and creating a new office to serve Community interests. In the end I have concluded that while a restructure ing of this Office might be useful, a division of the function would be a serious mistake.				OGC 78-1515	13-766
General Counsel OGC Has Reviewed SUBJECT: Legal Support to CIA and DCI 1. Action Requested: Your consideration of the options outlined in paragraph 9 below. 2. Background: From time to time we have discussed the CIA/DCI legal support function, and possible alternative arrangements. You have looked to me for advice on this subject, and I have been a bit slow to respond, wanting among other things to make sure that insofar as possible my thoughts were divorced from any personal considerations. I have the sense from our discussions that you feel somewhat shorthanded, or perhaps under-represented would be the better word, when it comes to legal support on the Community side of the house. I have tried to understand the origins of that problem as well as to weigh the merits of various new approaches, including the idea of dividin the legal function, leaving one office to serve CIA and creating a new office to serve Community interests. In the end I have concluded that while a restructuring of this Office might be useful, a division of the function would be a serious STAT				13 March 1978	DD/A Reg
General Counsel OGC Has Reviewed SUBJECT: Legal Support to CIA and DCI 1. Action Requested: Your consideration of the options outlined in paragraph 9 below. 2. Background: From time to time we have discussed the CIA/DCI legal support function, and possible alternative arrangements. You have looked to me for advice on this subject, and I have been a bit slow to respond, wanting among other things to make sure that insofar as possible my thoughts were divorced from any personal considerations. I have the sense from our discussions that you feel somewhat shorthanded, or perhaps under-represented would be the better word, when it comes to legal support on the Community side of the house. I have tried to understand the origins of that problem as well as to weigh the merits of various new approaches, including the idea of dividing the legal function, leaving one office to serve CIA and creating a new office to serve Community interests. In the end I have concluded that while a restructure ing of this Office might be useful, a division of the function would be a serious STAT STAT	ME	MORANDUM FOR:	Director of Central Intellig	gence	A Registry
1. Action Requested: Your consideration of the options outlined in paragraph 9 below. 2. Background: From time to time we have discussed the CIA/DCI legal support function, and possible alternative arrangements. You have looked to me for advice on this subject, and I have been a bit slow to respond, wanting among other things to make sure that insofar as possible my thoughts were divorced from any personal considerations. I have the sense from our discussions that you feel somewhat shorthanded, or perhaps under-represented would be the better word, when it comes to legal support on the Community side of the house. I have tried to understand the origins of that problem as well as to weigh the merits of various new approaches, including the idea of dividing the legal function, leaving one office to serve CIA and creating a new office to serve Community interests. In the end I have concluded that while a restructuring of this Office might be useful, a division of the function would be a serious	FR	OM:		.11	t sign
2. Background: From time to time we have discussed the CIA/DCI legal support function, and possible alternative arrangements. You have looked to me for advice on this subject, and I have been a bit slow to respond, wanting among other things to make sure that insofar as possible my thoughts were divorced from any personal considerations. I have the sense from our discussions that you feel somewhat shorthanded, or perhaps under-represented would be the better word, when it comes to legal support on the Community side of the house. I have tried to understand the origins of that problem as well as to weigh the merits of various new approaches, including the idea of dividing the legal function, leaving one office to serve CIA and creating a new office to serve Community interests. In the end I have concluded that while a restructuring of this Office might be useful, a division of the function would be a serious mistake.	SU	BJECT:	Legal Support to CIA and	DCI
	loc we di we of	bked to me for adventing among other ere divorced from scussions that you ould be the better the house. I have to weigh the merical function, are Community in	ice on this subject, and I he things to make sure that is any personal consideration feel somewhat shorthande word, when it comes to legge tried to understand the its of various new approach leaving one office to serve terests. In the end I have	nave been a bit sinsofar as possions. I have the ed, or perhaps ugal support on the origins of thanes, including the CIA and creat concluded that	ble my thoughts sense from our ander-represented to problem as well the idea of dividing a new office to while a restructurould be a serious